AWARD SCORING – Larry G. Benedict Leadership Award:

Does the nomination make sense? Does the nominated individual fit the award?

9 – 10 points  The nominated individual has gone above and beyond the baseline criteria for this award. This may be due to: creating impact beyond a few individual student or one specific student group; actively seeking out opportunities to mentor others; and/or other items or points that stand out to you.

6 – 8 points  The award description fits both the individual that has been nominated and the reason(s) why they have been nominated. The nominated individual’s actions accurately reflect the spirit of the award. The nominee has met the baseline criteria for this award:

• Nomination clearly articulates in what capacity nominee has served as a mentor or coach within the MIT community – should be peer to peer.
• Nomination discusses the impact nominee has had on fellow students, specifically in regards to supporting other students, encouraging their development, pushing them to try new challenges, empowering their efforts, etc.

3 – 5 points  The award description kind of fits the individual that has been nominated. This may be due to lack of information within the nominator’s description, an example(s) that do not reflect the spirit of the award, and/or other reasons

2 or below  The award description does not fit the individual or their actions. They should not receive the award.
